Who We Are

ABOUT US

Established in 1908, and comprising of over 1300 members, the Oxford University German Society is Oxford's largest and oldest national society. The Society's core goal is to encourage debate amongst Oxford students about cultural, scientific, economic and political developments in the German-speaking world.

As a focal point for students with an interest in German culture we provide a forum in which all students of all nationalities can engage in formal and social discussion. We help our members to broaden their minds, improve their skills and advance their careers.

USING YOUR CONTRIBUTION

Our lifetime membership fee is kept at just £25 to ensure that students from all financial backgrounds may access our events.

Your sponsorship helps us to cover accommodation and travel expenses for speakers, event costs, and administrative expenses. Without you few of our activities would be possible.

What We Do

SPEAKERS

Each term, we invite celebrities from various fields to join us for talks and interviews in Oxford. You can find our past speakers in our Hall of Fame.

LANGUAGE & CULTURE

We offer free German language classes for our members, and organise regular cultural events such as film screenings or visits to the German Embassy.

CAREERS

We provide our members with opportunities to meet top employers at recruitment events, in addition to providing career-development support.

SOCIALS

We have many events such as our formal dinners, garden parties, board game nights, our annual Oxtoberfest as well as our regular Stammtisch.

COOPERATIONS

Regular exchanges and cooperations with the various German Societies in Cambridge and London ensure a close-knit network across the United Kingdom.
